Explores global political sensibilities and fosters dialogue to understand and exchange diverse investigative experiences, shaping contemporary planetary politics of sensibilities

This book offers a reflection about the state of politics of sensibilities on a planetary scale today; the authors propose a space that is destined to listen and exchange our own experiences of inquiry.

About the Author(s) / Editor(s)

Adrian Scribano is the Director of the Centre for Sociological Research and Studies and a Principal Researcher at the National Council for Scientific and Technical Research of Argentina. He is also the Director of the Latin American Journal of Studies on Bodies, Emotions, and Society. He is Chercheur Associé LEIRIS Paul Valéry Montpellier 3 au Département de sociologie de l'UFR 5 and Adjunct Professor at Torrens University Australia.

Silvia Cataldi is an Associate Professor of sociology at the Department of Development and Socialization processes of Sapienza University of Rome (Italy). Since her PhD, she teaches sociology and research methods at bachelor's and master's degree courses and doctoral schools. She addresses her research on solidarity actions, with a focus on the empowerment of most vulnerable targets and prison environment, through projects financed by the European Commission. She is the coordinator of the International Sociological Association's TG12 Social Love and Solidarity, board member of the European Sociological Association's Research Network—Qualitative Methods (RN20), and coordinator of the international research network Social-One.

Fabrizio Martire (PhD) is Full Professor of Sociology at the Department of Communication and Social Research, Sapienza University of Rome. Among his main scientific interests are sociological theory, history of sociology and social research, methodology of social research (with a specific focus on data collection strategies and techniques), public opinion analysis, and evaluation (with a specific focus on quality of social research outputs). On these issues he has organized and supervised several scientific projects, publishing almost 80 essays (monographs, edited volumes, articles in Italian and international journals, chapters). He is a member of the Advisory Board of the Research Network—Quantitative Methods (RN21) of the European Sociological Association (since 2019).
